GUARANTEED AMOUNT

A traveller who cannot obtain a refund because Lewos is insolvent may claim directly against that policy. Lewos also holds a separate public-liability insurance policy for the activity.

The booking

A featured Tavern weekend has six seats and is intended for adults aged 18 or older. The services, dates, accommodation, meals, transfers, programme, total price including applicable taxes, payment method and any accessibility or special requirements accepted by Lewos form part of the booking confirmation and the pre-contract travel information.

A group is kept together. If the complete group no longer fits, payment does not begin and no partial group is booked.

Temporary seat hold and confirmation

When checkout begins, the seats are held while payment is completed. Where a single payer pays for the booking, the hold lasts up to 40 minutes. Where each participant pays their own share, the group has 60 minutes to complete the details and a further 30 minutes to pay; if part of the group has paid by then, the participants who have not are given one extension of the same length, so a hold can last up to two hours in total. Seats that are still unpaid when a hold ends are not released automatically: Lewos reviews the booking and decides, and will say so on a durable medium. Starting checkout alone does not confirm a booking. A booking becomes binding when payment is successfully accepted. Lewos then provides the booking confirmation and accepted terms on a durable medium, normally by email. A failure or delay in delivering that email does not undo a successfully paid booking.

Transfer to another traveller

The traveller may transfer the booking to another person who meets all applicable conditions by notifying Lewos on a durable medium at least seven calendar days before the weekend begins. The original and replacement traveller are jointly responsible for any outstanding balance and for reasonable, evidenced costs actually caused by the transfer. Lewos will provide evidence of those costs on request.

Cancellation by the traveller

The traveller may cancel before the weekend begins. Any cancellation charge will be appropriate and justifiable and will not exceed the booking price minus costs saved and income received from reselling the released services. Lewos will explain the calculation on request.

No cancellation charge applies where unavoidable and extraordinary circumstances at or near the destination significantly affect the weekend or travel to it, as provided by applicable package-travel law. In that situation, payments are refunded in full without additional compensation.

Cancellation by Lewos

A featured weekend requires at least four paid guests. If that minimum is not reached, Lewos may cancel by notifying the traveller no later than seven calendar days before the weekend begins. Lewos may also cancel where unavoidable and extraordinary circumstances prevent performance, provided notice is given without undue delay before the start.

In either case, all payments received for the cancelled booking are refunded in full. Any refund required under these cancellation provisions will be made without undue delay and no later than fourteen calendar days after termination.

Price and changes before the weekend

The total price shown in the paid booking confirmation is fixed and will not be increased afterwards.

Lewos will communicate any other proposed change clearly on a durable medium. If a main characteristic must change significantly or an agreed special requirement cannot be met, the traveller may accept the change or terminate without a cancellation charge within the reasonable response period stated in the notice.

During the weekend

Lewos is responsible for performing the included services in accordance with the booking, including services supplied by third parties. A guest should report any problem without undue delay so that it can be remedied. Where a significant service cannot be supplied, Lewos will provide a suitable alternative without additional cost where reasonably possible and apply any price reduction or other remedy required by law.

Complaints and assistance

Questions, requests for assistance and complaints can be sent to lewos.co@gmail.com. Lewos will acknowledge and handle them directly. The booking confirmation will include a telephone contact for urgent assistance during the weekend and the applicable consumer-dispute information.

Images and descriptions

The services included in a booking are those set out in the booking confirmation and the pre-contract travel information, together with the standard information form. Illustrations used on the website and in promotional material convey atmosphere; they are not a description of the accommodation and do not form part of the contract. Where an illustration and those documents differ, the documents apply. Photographs of the actual location are published on the Tavern's Instagram channel and by the accommodation itself on @fontecha_asturias.

Age, filming and personal data

Featured Tavern weekends are for adults aged 18 or older. Filming information and each adult guest's separate choice about identifiable promotional use are explained in the legal notice. Personal data is handled as described in the privacy information.

Applicable rights

These terms do not limit mandatory consumer or package-travel rights. Spanish law applies, without depriving a consumer of mandatory protections that apply in their country of habitual residence. The competent courts are determined by applicable consumer law.
